After the destruction of Cervera's fleet he was placed in command of the Eastern squadron, which threatened to sail to Europe and attack the fleet under Admiral Camara.

SECRET OF THE MURDER OF POSTMASTER CLOSE

The Stanwich, Conn., Official Not Killed by Thieves.

Slain That Incriminating Letters Might Be Obtained.

Victim of a Man Who Had Written Improper Notes, and Whose Exposure Was Threatened.

New York, June 16.—The slayer of Samuel J. Close, the old postmaster at Stanwich, Conn., is known, and according to the police his arrest will cause a stir in that State and even in New York.

The murder, according to these same police, was committed by a man of high social standing in order to steal improper letters he had written to a woman. The woman exposed him by turning the letters over to the postmaster at Stanwich, and to get these letters the writer resorted to murder.

Old man Close was in his store, which was also the postoffice, on the night of May 22. In the morning he was found in front of the building unconscious, having been sandbagged. His death followed in a few hours.

The police at once set about tracing Mr. Close's assailant. Several arrests were made and the State offered a reward for the capture and conviction of the guilty person. The Pinkerton agency of New York became interested, and for more than two weeks Detective Wilkes, of the Pinkerton agency, and Deputy Sheriff Fitzroy, of Greenwich, have been unraveling the mystery.

They discovered that no money had been stolen from the postoffice on the night of the murder, and that the only thing missing was a book in which was filed letters of a questionable character on which the postmaster was expected to make a report to Washington.

Detective Wilkes and Deputy Sheriff Fitzroy at once came to the conclusion that the person who had committed the murder had done so to steal the book.

According to an informant it was found that a young man of prominence who formerly was in business in New Haven and Bridgeport, and who for a time lived in Greenwich, had written improper letters to a young woman living in the neighborhood of Greenwich.

The letters had been mailed at Stanwich and the woman had returned them to the postmaster. He in turn had recorded them to send to the authorities for investigation.

Mr. Close was not a talkative man. Not even his son, his assistant in the postoffice and in the running of the store, knew of the contents of the letters. He knows, however, that there were such letters and that these letters and the book in which they were recorded were stolen on the night his father was murdered.

"I cannot talk of this case," said Deputy Sheriff Fitzroy, when seen last night at his home in Greenwich. "I will only say that the murderer is known and that he cannot evade arrest and conviction. Our case is perfect."

"Is the man prominent socially?" was asked.

"He is known by the people here pretty well, and he would be known by the people in New York were I to mention his name," was the reply.

Robert Pinkerton, of the Pinkerton agency, when seen, admitted that Detective Wilkes had a strong case against the murderer of Mr. Close.

"I will have a very good story to give out in a day or two," he said. "As yet I cannot talk about the case."

DOG STOPS A RUNAWAY HORSE. Pulled at the Reins and Prevented a Collision.

Chicago, June 16.—Down Wentworth Avenue yesterday dashed a runaway horse attached to a light uncovered delivery wagon. The driver had been thrown out at Sixty-sixth Street, and the sole occupant of the vehicle was a white Llewellyn setter, which was barking furiously and frightening the horse into more desperate leaps and lunges.

Swaying from one side of the Street to the other, the wagon seemed ready at any moment to overturn, and its speed was so great that spectators who saw the runaway made no attempt to stop it.

Just before the horse reached Sixty-third Street, where the blockade of street cars and other traffic made a serious collision inevitable, the setter, after his barking, climbed up on the seat and seized the lines between his teeth. Then he jumped down into the bed of the wagon again and ran to the rear. There he braced himself upon his haunches and pulled and sawed desperately until the horse's speed slackened into a slow gallop.

Half a dozen men at Sixty-third Street succeeded then in stopping the horse without trouble and without any person being injured. The dog, as soon as the wagon stopped, jumped down under the horse's head and remained there until the driver appeared and took charge. The animal belongs to an Englewood carpet cleaner.

The liner El Rio and the magnificent tug El Amico will go overboard Saturday, June 4. El Rio will be christened by Miss Miriam L. Post, of Albany, N. Y., sister of Walter A. Post, the general superintendent of the company. El Amico will be christened by Miss Emma Rowbottom, of this city.

Peanut Market Advances. Norfolk, Va., June 16.—Peanuts were again marked up yesterday by some dealers, and it is understood that others will do likewise. The advance on some grades was very sharp, and it is believed that another advance will follow soon. The sale at Petersburg of the Spanish nuts at an advanced price has stiffened these materials.

None of this grade is in the hands of commission men here. Reports from the growing section are to the effect that the late spring is likely to be followed by a light crop, and cleaners report a strong demand for nuts.

CRUEL PRACTICAL JOKING.

A Girl Injured by a Firecracker Explosion on Her Back.

New York, June 16.—The Harlem police court assumed the appearance of a kindergarten school yesterday morning. There were about twenty-four little girls and boys, dressed in their best clothes and looking with awe at the big policemen and Magistrate Simms.

They were all witnesses in the case of Martin Langdon, Jr., eleven years old, son of Policeman Martin Langdon, attached to the sanitary squad of the Health Department, and living at No. 48 West 134th Street. The boy was charged with felonious assault. He was so frightened he could hardly speak.

It is alleged that on June 13, while Ray Nathan, five years old, was sitting on the stoop of her father's residence, at No. 7 West 114th Street, young Langdon went up to her, placed his arms about her neck and set fire to a large firecracker which he placed down her back. The explosion of the firecracker, it is claimed, burned the back, neck, and face of the little girl so badly that she is now lying in a serious condition at her home. The little Nathan girl was not in court, but her father, Aaron H. Nathan, a cloakmaker, in West Twelfth Street, was present. He presented a certificate from Dr. D. G. Cooke, of No. 1666 Madison Avenue, and Dr. B. Franklin, of No. 115 12th Street, to the effect that the little girl was too ill to appear in court.

All of the youthful witnesses disclaimed having seen young Langdon put the firecracker back the Nathan girl.

Magistrate Simms told Mr. Nathan that there was not enough evidence to warrant him in holding young Langdon, but in case anything serious happened to his child, he could at any time reopen the case. It was the prevailing opinion that the Langdon boy was innocent, and that some other lad was responsible.

Many people, fearful that he might do them bodily harm, fled from the car. Those who remained refused to allow Byer to run the car and the company was notified. Byer was at first furious, but was kept under control by passengers. A new motorman was sent to operate the car and Byer was removed to his home in West Brighton, where he was attended by a physician.

TOOK MORPHINE TO DIE. Suicide Leaves Sad Farewells to All His Children.

Cumberland, Md., June 16.—Fred Humm, aged forty-six years, committed suicide yesterday at the Pennsylvania Hotel in Cumberland by taking morphine. He was a carpenter and contractor, and was engaged with Thomas Burger & Sons, Cumberland. He was formerly in partnership with John and W. A. Bucholtz, and later engaged in the wholesale liquor business. He was once quite wealthy. For several days he had threatened to take his life, and asked the hotel man to lay off a day to go to his funeral.

Yesterday morning he answered a call at 6 o'clock. This was the last known of him until his body was discovered. He was seated in a chair, and on his knee was a large picture of a group of soldiers of the Second West Virginia Regiment, representing a Christmas dinner at Camp Wetherill, Greenville, S. C. His son, Herbert, was in the group. On the envelope containing the picture was written messages of love to his daughter Carrie. On a book about his bed near were messages to all his children.

The report was adopted after a hard fight, and Governor Pingree will act accordingly. The members of the board whose removal is recommended are Mrs. A. T. Bliss, of Saginaw, and Mrs. A. H. Smith, of Flint.
